

2017-05

Plume of Feathers: Still Moving Images

Black, SM

<http://hdl.handle.net/10026.1/15890>

---

---

All content in PEARL is protected by copyright law. Author manuscripts are made available in accordance with publisher policies. Please cite only the published version using the details provided on the item record or document. In the absence of an open licence (e.g. Creative Commons), permissions for further reuse of content should be sought from the publisher or author.

Dr. Stephanie Black
Proposal for International Motion Festival, Cyprus

Plume of Feathers: Still Moving Images

This paper will explore the relationship between still and moving images in a project consisting of illustration as a visual essay making use of film and still image, which is projected over the live performance of a music album. Here, the manipulation of time to deliver the visual component can, deliberately, alternate between motion and lack of motion to exploit the friction between sound and image, and encourage critical thinking within the audience who is asked to span the gaps and synthesise divergent messages.

The practice discussed operates as informed voice within the conversation, with both image and vocals exploring the topic of the decline of the public house in the UK. In this regard, the visual project questions the dominant representations of the pub in circulation. This will be set within its political context to argue for the importance of reflexive and persuasive image making, and the strengths of motion graphics in making these communications that contribute to the health and democracy of the society they exist within.

Biographical information

Stephanie Black is a practitioner-researcher in illustration, and completed a practice-led Ph.D. at the University of the West of England (Bristol), and currently lectures at Plymouth University. She has exhibited nationally and internationally, works to commission, and is also co-editor of an online drawing research project called Hatch. Stephanie also writes about illustration, focusing on the methods employed and theoretical territory it traverses.

<http://www.stephanieblack.co.uk/>